Composer-In-Residence Program With Cantor Jerome B. Kopmar Premieres February 26

Cantor Jerome B. Kopmar

A newly instituted composer-in-residence program, co-sponsored by Park Avenue Synagogue's Music Department and the Sherr Institute of Adult Jewish Studies, will feature Cantor Jerome B. Kopmar, Park Avenue Synagogue's composer-in-residence.

The premier presentation of this program will take place on Friday evening, February 26th at 8:00 P.M., in conjunction with the Couples Club annual Friday Night Service. In addition, Cantor Kopmar will speak and sing his music at the Shabbat morning service on Saturday, February 27th.

Cantor Jerome B. Kopmar, a native of Hartford, Connecticut, is a graduate of the Cantors Institute of The Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He also studied at the Hart College of Music of the University of Hartford and at the Cleveland Institute of Music.

Cantor Kopmar, who has been serving the Beth Abraham Synagogue of Dayton, Ohio for the past 23 years, has distinguished himself as a vocalist, conductor, and composer. As the founder and director of the Beth Abraham Youth Chorale, he established a record of unique musical creativity. In addition to commissioning more than 25 major works of Jewish music, he toured with the group throughout the United States, Canada, England, and Israel. His work has received seven Solomon Schechter Awards for outstanding music programming, including a special Solomon Schechter Award for education through music.

Congresswoman Nita Lowey Will Speak At W.E.G. Shabbat Dinner January 29

Congresswoman Nita Lowey, now in her second term, will be the guest speaker at the Shabbat Dinner following the Women's Evening Group's Shabbat Service on Friday evening, January 29, 1993. The service will begin promptly at 6:15 P.M. and will be followed by a Congregational Shabbat Dinner hosted by W.E.G. (advance reservations are required). The congregation and community are cordially invited to attend services and the dinner, and to hear Congresswoman Lowey.

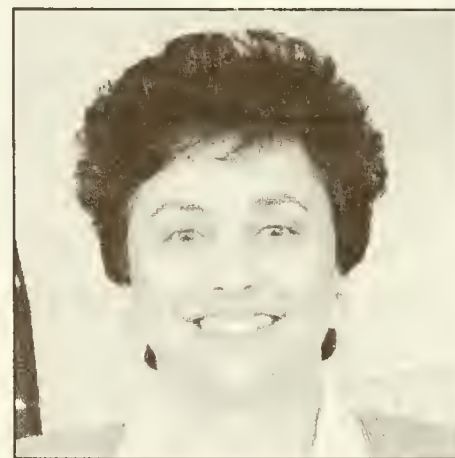

Do you perhaps recall the picture on television news of the delegation of congresswomen mounting the steps of the Capitol Building to insist that the alleged charges of sexual harassment lodged against the nominee to the Supreme Court, Clarence Thomas, be investigated by the Senate Judiciary Committee? Nita Lowey was a member of that delegation.

A life-long community and civic activist, Mrs. Lowey served in the New York Department of State for twelve years prior to her election to Congress in 1988, the only woman to defeat an incumbent member of Congress in that election. Two years later, she won re-election to a second term by a record-breaking margin.

During her past four years in Congress, she has been an ardent supporter and leading advocate of job creation and economic growth; of comprehensive health care reform; of tough anti-crime measures; of a cleaner and healthier environment; of measures to improve educa-

As a vocalist, Cantor Kopmar has appeared throughout the United States and Canada in concerts and recitals. He was a featured soloist at the past two conventions of the Cantors Assembly.

Although coming to composing somewhat late in his career, he has received commissions from some of the most prestigious synagogues both in the United States and Canada. Park Avenue Synagogue has a special place in Cantor Kopmar's composing career. It was Park Avenue Synagogue and Cantor David Lefkowitz who gave him his first commission. Cantor Kopmar's very popular Shema B'ni and Shimi Vat were commissioned by Park Avenue Synagogue tional programs from pre-school to post-secondary education.

She also continues to be an outspoken supporter of democracy and human rights here, at home, as well as abroad. She remains a leading proponent of strong United States-Israel ties and is committed to speaking out on human rights issues and abuses in other countries.

Congresswoman Lowey is a dynamic and forceful speaker with ideas and concerns of interest to all of us. Therefore, the Women's Evening Group is proud to introduce her to the congregation and community and invites everyone to attend what promises to be a stimulating evening at the Park Avenue Synagogue.

To make your reservations for the Congregational Shabbat Dinner, please call the synagogue office. The cost is $25 per person.

and are frequently parts of our service. Other works commissioned by Park Avenue Synagogue were Tikanta Shabbat in honor of Israel's 40th anniversary, Hashkiveynu composed in honor of Cantor Lefkowitz's 10th anniversary at Park Avenue Synagogue, and L'dor Vador written in honor of the Bat Mitzvah of Ranee Lefkowitz.

Two volumes of Cantor Kopmar's music, Shirat Libi and Kol Sasson, a complete wedding service, have been published by Tara Publications.

Plan to attend this very special Shabbat Service at the Park Avenue Synagogue. A gala Oneg Shabbat will follow the service.

Birkat Kohanim

The Priestly Blessing

I hope to revive the ancient practice of the Priestly Blessing in our congregation, and, as my article this month, I present part of a paper I wrote for the law-making body of the Conservative Movement some years ago.

"Although there may not be an official response from the Law Committee on this subject, I would draw attention to the paper written by our colleague, Rabbi David Novak, entitled 'The Priestly Blessing.' In that essay, he discusses objections such as the ceremony being seen as too mystical, its being seen as too suggestive of a caste system, and the question of whether non-observant Kohanim have the right to bless in God's name. He discusses various disqualifications of Kohanim and the present status of Kohanim. I would encourage those rabbis who so desire to introduce this blessing into the festival service in accordance with Ashkenazic custom, or more frequently, as is done in Sephardic congregations. Many of us remember the ceremonial from our childhoods, when, for one reason or another, it made a lasting impression on our minds. There is, indeed, a mystical quality to the ceremony. A renewed desire to restore a sense of awe and majesty to the synagogue service may lead to a wider acceptance of the practice. Rabbi Novak points out 'the reason for the extraordinary influence my late revered teacher, Professor A. J. Heschel, had on so many heretofore non-religious Jews was, in my opinion, his continued emphasis on the primacy of awe and wonder in the religious life. For this reason he was often called a mystic, even though he told me that he did not accept the title for himself.'"

"Regarding the concern that duchaning (as it is called) perpetuates a caste system, I do not feel that we are encouraging class war. What we are doing in a delightful and inoffensive way is maintaining a link with our great past and living with the "historic anticipation" of which Rabbi Seymour Siegel often spoke. This ceremony, after all, is one of the very few links we have with the ancient temple service. It gives us a glimpse of our glorious past. For us to sever the chain, however tenuous, from Aaron, the High Priest, to his modern descendants would be unforgivable. Although I introduced duchaning at Beth Hillel Congregation, Wilmette, Illinois many years ago, and it was generally accepted, there were, nevertheless, some objectors. These came from the ranks of both Kohanim and non-Kohanim. The Kohanim, themselves, felt that they were unworthy, and the congregants concurred! It may be of interest to note that there are only two mitzvot in Jewish life which elicit the response "I am unworthy," duchaning and tefillin! No one ever said, for instance, I cannot eat matzot on Pesach because I profane the Shabbat. In fact, the Shulhan Arukh, the code of Jewish law, anticipated this particular problem:

"If [a Kohen] does not have any of the specific disqualifications which would render him unfit to give the Priestly Blessing, even if he is not scrupulous in his observance of the commandments, and all the people slander him, nonetheless, he should give the Priestly Blessing, because none of the other sins should prevent a Kohen from giving the Priestly Blessing."

"This murmuring from congregants or a feeling of unworthiness does not excuse one from participation in duchaning."

"The Halakhah does question the fitness of certain categories of Kohanim to perform this ritual, but we should take a lenient view. We should not delve too deeply into the status of Kohanim. I would not allow duchaning on Simhat Torah when there are intoxicating drinks readily available before kiddish. Each rabbi would, of course, be able to make his own rules in accordance with his interpretation of the Halakhah on whom to prevent from duchaning."

To summarize, I feel that we should look favorably upon and encourage those congregations who may wish to initiate this ceremony. It can be a most uplifting experience for all concerned, as well as a reminder of past glories.

Tu B'Shevat

Tu B'Shevat, the New Year for Trees, begins at sundown, Friday, February 5th and concludes at sundown, Saturday, February 6th.

In Jewish history, Hillel and his disciples declared Chamisha Asar B'Shevat a semiholiday. They called it "Rosh Hashana L'Ilanot" (the New Year for Trees) because by this day in Israel the annual rains have ended and a new annual cycle of tree growth begins.

On this as well as on virtually all issues, the School of Hillel's decision was accepted and since the first century, C.E., the 15th day of the month of Shevat has been celebrated as the New Year for Trees.

No special liturgy or festivity is described for the day. But in Israel, the ancient practice of planting trees has been revived and school children and others do so on Tu B'Shevat.

In our religious school, children plant trees in Israel through the Jewish National Fund.

AIDS & TB To Be Discussed At W.E.G. Program on March 8

Several years ago, in memory of one of its vice presidents, Joyce Kagan, the Women's Evening Group instituted an annual lecture under the general heading, "Staying Vital in the 90's." By inviting medical experts to discuss important health issues and to answer questions, the issues surrounding breast cancer and reconstructive surgery were dealt with in the first two programs in this ongoing series.

The third lecture in this series will take place on Monday, March 8th when Dr. Ilona W. Surick will discuss "AIDS & TB: Each A Woman's Health Issue."

Dr. Surick is a medical epidemiologist with the Office of AIDS Surveillance of the New York City Department of Health.

She is a graduate, summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa, of the Boston University six year program in medicine, with a major in medical science and a minor in philosophy. She received her medical degree from the Boston University Medical School and a master's degree in public health from the Columbia University School of Public Health, with a concentration in general public health.

She has done postgraduate training in preventive medicine and public health and has taught, written, and lectured on public health issues.

Dr. Surick is an articulate speaker, knowledgeable about HIV infection and the spread of both AIDS and tuberculosis. She will discuss these infectious diseases as they impact on women, supplying vital and correct information and will answer questions.

Come and learn. Bring your children and your friends. AIDS and TB are women's health issues and will continue to be so well into the future. Only with knowledge can we win the battle against these modern day plagues.
